

CME Verbiage for Fecal Lactoferrin Measurements in Clinical Practice

The presentational method for this activity will be Lecture with an opportunity for real-time question and answer periods for the live activity, and on demand access of the presentation for the enduring material activity. Both the internet live course and the internet activity enduring material are geared towards Gastroenterologists, Family Practitioners, Health and Medicine Researchers, Clinical and Molecular Diagnostics Researchers, and Microbiology Lab Technicians and Managers, as well as Doctors, Scientists, and Students that fall within these categories of interest or field of work. This activity will encompass the following desirable physician attributes: Patient Care & Procedural Skills, Medical Knowledge, Professionalism, and Practice-Based Learning & Improvement.

Desired Outcomes

At the end of the activity, participants should be able to:

1. Identify scenarios in which fecal lactoferrin testing may aid in diagnosis
2. Recognize when fecal lactoferrin levels may be useful in tracking disease activity or assessing response to therapy
3. Use fecal lactoferrin biomarkers as a first-step diagnostic strategy to minimize the need for scoping on certain patient populations, like pediatrics, for whom a more non-invasive diagnostic tool is beneficial

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME®) through the joint providership of CME Consultants and LabRoots. CME Consultants is accredited by the ACCME® to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

CME Consultants designates this internet live activity for a maximum of 1.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

CME Consultants designates this enduring material for a maximum of 1.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Enduring Material release date: 5/4/18

Enduring Material Termination date: 11/4/18

In accordance with the Americans with Disability Act (ADA), please contact LabRoots at ce@labroots.com should you require special assistance.